Fire Razes Leo Woolley Home

The fire alarm was turned in about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, when a gasoline explosion in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Woolley set the entire house afire and it was so far gone even when the brigade arrived, which was in very good time, that nothing could be saved, and the hungry flames raced through the house while hundreds of neighbors stood by unable to do a thing anymore than was done by the stream of water playing on the holocaust.

Roy Woolley was cleaning up the washing machine in one of the rooms using gas to wash it with. The machine had one switch at the supply socket and one on the machine. When the last washing was finished it appears that the only switch turned off was the one on the machine, the socket still being on. Roy pushed the switch on the machine during his operation, and the room being full of fumes and his cleaning cloth full of gasoline there was an immediate explosion, which also ignited the gasoline he had in the pail. The room was enveloped in flames immediately and Roy had to rush outside to save his life, and even at that his left arm and hand were burned, though not seriously, and his hair and face were singed quite badly.

Neighbors and the fire brigade were on the scene at once, but the roaring flames made it impossible to do anything, and the other members of the family who were at home were forced to stand by and watch their home and furnishings, with all that it held so dear to them, burned to the ground. Several members of the family were at work and meetings, and when they arrived on the scene on hearing of the fire, everything was gone and the only personal belongings they had were what was on their persons.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family, who were taken to the homes of friends for the night. Unfortunately there was no insurance on either the building or its contents.

Jim Meeks says they haven't all their stock gathered up yet following last week's blizzard, but he doesn't anticipate any extremely heavy losses.

Poultry raisers are hoping for some warm weather for a while now as baby chicks will soon start arriving from the hatcheries.

District Governor Here Next Monday

President Zabriskie announced in Rotary Monday that District Governor Oliver C. McIntyre, Edmonton, would be here to visit the Raymond Rotary Club next Monday on his annual visit. This will be an evening meeting, being at 7 p.m., and a 100 p.c. attendance of members is asked by the executive.

The following Monday April 18th will be Easter Monday and a public holiday, and a picnic outing is planned by the Rotarians to the Rotary Arms and children of Rotary families. This will be a new feature in Rotary, but judging by the enthusiasm shown in the announcement Monday, it will be a big success and will furnish about the first outing of the spring.

By Mutual consent all stores in Raymond will close on Saturday night at 7 p.m. so that everyone will be able to attend the Basketball playoffs that night. This includes Barber shops, Butcher Shops and all.

Shoppers attention is called to this decision so that they may shop early and avoid disappointment, and Town officials would appreciate 100 p.c. co-operation on the part of shopkeepers and the public in this move.

R. H. Whealy of the Carelton Xmas Card Co., was a Raymond visitor on Monday.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Huddle

Funeral services for Mrs. Chas. Huddle, whose death was reported in last week's Recorder, were held in the Stake House on Sunday at 2 p.m. with Bishop J. O. Hicken in charge. W. W. McMullin conducted the choir, and Roi Stone was at the organ, a large choir being present for the service. The floral tributes, which were beautiful, and the congregation of friends and neighbors present, were a silent and impressive tribute of the esteem in which deceased was held.

The first speaker of the meeting was Elder Arthur Dahl who had known the Huddle family ever since their arrival in Raymond in 1909. They had left their native land of England to make their home with the L.D.S. people in the valleys of the mountains and while their sacrifice had been great, Mr. Huddle leaving a profitable profession, that of coach painting, and both leaving their loved ones and friends, yet they had always been thankful of their coming here, and were always faithful and true to their testimony of the truth. Elders Wm. Card of Raymond, and T. W. and LeRoy Duce of Cardston, had been very friendly with the Huddle family in the Old Country where they served as missionaries, and had encouraged the family to come to Zion, their friendship having been resumed here.

Former Bishop James E. Meeks of the Raymond First Ward spoke next on the plan of life and death, the great experiences it brings us, and the reward that awaits the faithful. He spoke of the efforts of infidels and agnostics to disprove the existence of God, and contrasted their condition with deceased and many others, whose testimony and knowledge of the personality of God enabled them to face death and separation with a degree of faith and assurance that greatly lessened the pain and was strong connecting link between the mortal existence and the spirit world.

Elder Clarence Allred, a member of the First Ward Bishopric for many years spoke of his acquaintance with the family and of the willingness to serve and humility that was always exhibited by the parents as well as the children. He had always admired their courage in the face of trouble, and spoke of the time when their home was burned down, leaving them with practically nothing; yet they never complained, but went to work to rebuild and carry on. He spoke of the talent in music of deceased and her husband, and how they loved the Songs of Zion.

Bishop Hicken read a message from the children who were unable to be present, and expressed his personal appreciation of the patience of deceased in her affliction of blindness, and of the willingness of the family to serve. He thanked all who had assisted in any way.

Songs by the Choir, all of their request numbers were "Oh My Father," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "Shall We Meet Beyond the River," "Abide With Me," and "Rock of Ages." Jos. McLean sang "Goin' Home."

The opening prayer was by Parley Litchfield and the benediction by Pres. H. S. Allen. In testimony was in the local cemetery. Christensen Bros. in charge, and the pall bearers were D. G. and C. W. Selman, Frank Leavitt, Frank Shaw, Wilford Burrows and Cyril Hutchinson.

Playoffs Commence Tonight

After a series of telegrams, they can beat the Dominos, details were finally arranged, which team Raymond has met and the Dominion Basketball before in playoffs. That the playoffs between the Vancouver Jacks are good we all know and having kept in good trim since Columbia, and the Union Jacks, their game with Edmonton for the provincial crown, will take way in the Opera House tonight Friday in a two game total point series, to see which team will go east to meet the Manitoba winners and the eastern finalists.

It took six games to decide the B. C. Winners, the Dominos and Westerns fighting it out. The series was best three out of five, and each team took two games, one was a tie and the sixth was necessary to decide the issue. It should be a tough and interesting series.

The Westerns are a new entry into the senior lists of the Coast Province, but are good, when they come to Winnipeg.

7 p.c. TAX ON FARM

PRODUCTION

A bill is receiving attention in the Provincial House at present to levy a tax on farm production to take the place of some of the land taxes. This would mean that when production was heavy, taxes would be heavy, and when crop failures were the rule, taxes would be nil or correspondingly light. The bill is not without merit.

A redistribution bill is also being talked, to reduce house membership from 63 to 53. Calgary would lose a member and Edmonton one, and rural districts would lose eight. This matter has been discussed before but no decision could be successfully made as to where the reduction would take place.

Mayor Earl Tanner, Dave Keeler, and A. D. Murray of Calgary, were here Monday in connection with the proposed new woollen mill for Magrath. A company known as the Golden Fleece Woollen Mill Limited has been incorporated under the companies act, and a prospectus and application forms for stock are being printed and sale of shares will be commenced at once.

The old Royal Bank building in Magrath will be converted into a mill, and new and up-to-date machinery will be installed for the manufacture at present of blankets. Mr. Murray is an experienced man in the manufacture of woollen goods having started a woollen mill in Midnapore 29 years ago. Incidentally Mr. Murray told us he is still using woollen blankets manufactured in that mill 29 years ago and that there is not a hole in them yet.

He affirms that there is no wool equal in quality to the Western Canada wool and that if the people and wool growers will support the new industry that it can be built in an active and extensive business to the benefit of every individual in Southern Alberta.

Magrath people, headed by Mayor Tanner, are to be congratulated on bringing to fruition this idea on which they have been working for over two years, having been disappointed in two former prospects that looked very good. They hope to be turning out Magrath blankets before the end of the spring season.

A USEFUL CLASS OF PEOPLE

A small mode of praise might not come amiss occasionally for the merchants in the towns and villages who do their best to make their community an attractive place and a centre of usefulness for the district.

Those towns or villages where the merchants are unenterprising and stodgy in their outlook never amount to much. Even the farmers in the district get to be ashamed of them, and do not care to do their purchasing there.

A town is just as good as its merchants, other things being equal. So it is desirable that the merchants should always be on their collective toes, ready to improve conditions.

This might also be an opportune place to mention that the contribution of the merchants of Alberta to the development of this province stands second only to that of the farmers, the primary producers. Without the extension of credit (overdone in only too many instances) this province could never have achieved the progress it has.

When the farmers have been hardpressed by poor crops and low prices, the country merchant suffered side by side with him.

And through ups and downs the country merchant renders real useful service and one that could not be readily dispensed with.

As a class the town and hamlet merchants get too few bouquets while alive and so, with a sense of real appreciation, we pass this one along to the long-suffering storekeeper. —Brooks Bulletin.

OUR EDMONTON LETTER

EDMONTON, Alta.—Sixth session in the past two years of the present Alberta legislature was dying as this week opened, and there still was no indication of any poverty-mending legislation.

The three bogeys of the Aberhart government—the chief targets at which platform abuse is aimed by Social Credit members week after week as they continue their never-ending campaign to convince THE PEOPLE that there are tremendous difficulties being placed in the way of the government and so prevent it from coming through with the $25 monthly dividend and that long promised lower-cost-to-live—were all placed embarrassingly before the legislature last week.

And the Social Credit powers turned them aside. Refused to meet them openly.

There was the offer of Hon. Charles A. Dunning, federal minister of finance, to give the Alberta government every assistance desired in order to help this province establish its own bank—the same kind of chartered bank as are all the chief banks against which Premier Aberhart and his followers have been railing for the past two years.

But in reply to Mr. Dunning's offer, which was almost a challenge, Mr. Aberhart said that he and his government would not be interested in establishment of a bank. His explanation of why they would not be interested was not very clear to the galleries in the legislature; he said that they would not be interested in any new "restriction" placed upon the province.

It had been made clear in Mr. Dunning's offer if Alberta's government were to establish a bank—such banks have been established previously by other provincial governments; notably Ontario—the Alberta bank would have full control of its own policy, subject only to the banking laws of the dominion of Canada—the same laws which govern every bank in the nation.

Thus, with its own bank the provincial government could grant those interest-free loans it has been talking about—it the government found that it was financially possible as well as physically possible. Recently, D. Byrne, the "social credit expert" which the provincial Social Credit Board imported from England to tell it what to do, said in a radio speech, that Alberta people would get their dividends, tax reductions and a lower cost of living "within a very short space of time" if they insisted that "the responsible institutions, the banks," devised the method for producing those results, "under severe penalties should they fail."

Government supporters have been saying the same thing for many months past—declaring that the banks could establish Social Credit at any time, and that the banks could issue more money, and that cheques which are issued by the banks cost the banks nothing.

But when the federal minister of finance offered to help the provincial government establish its own bank so that it could do whatever the government desired, Premier Aberhart and his followers swallowed hard, though fast, and could only say that they were "not interested." It could only be supposed that, presuming the premier and his followers are entirely sincere in their expressed desire to issue dividends and reduce taxation, they must suspect that possibly banks have not the power and the unrestricted joys that have been claimed for them by Social Credit talkers, and that perhaps after all when bank writes a cheque on itself it does cost that bank, in cold hard cash, which is the expression of goods and services, the amount of the cheque. Or they may suspect that it might not be really true that banks "create" money—the means of payment out of nothing ing—but rather that the only money that a bank has is the money of its depositors and its shareholders.

For many months past the Alberta government has been condemning the dominion government, and talking about provincial autonomy. Yet the legislature a few days ago refused again to present a brief to the Rowell royal commission, which was appointed by the federal government and instructed to inquire into the complaints of every provincial government and to bring in recommendations designed to remedy the causes of complaint. The commission thus provided the means by which the Alberta government could have presented to the federal government the views of "the people" of this province. Whatever the government felt about the question, it was obvious that "the people" whom the Aberhart administration claims to represent desired to have their views presented, for there were more briefs presented by various organizations in Alberta than in any other province which the commission had visited.

Respecting the decision of the legislature not to present a brief, Hon. N. W. Rowell, chairman of the commission, nevertheless desired to give the government every opportunity to present its views so that they could be considered and included in the commission's report and investigations. The Chief Justice sent to Premier Aberhart a list of 23 questions and asked for the answers. They were straight direct unambiguous questions, touching on the claims which members of the provincial government have made and giving the government full opportunity to state its complaints with no more than answers of "yes" or "no."

But the premier would not answer them. He said he could not give the answers because of the legislature's decree not to present a full brief. So Alberta lost its chance to have the government's complaints presented where they should be presented.

Last week Conservative Leader D. M. Duggan moved that all mention of the whole story of the Don C. Brown affair be wiped out of the legislature's official records. Eight of the Social Credit members, along with the opposition, voted to have it all expunged. Not one Social Credit member had a word to say on that occasion about the press, but the motion was lost.

INSTALMENT EIGHTEEN

Monty Wallace has just arrived in California, having broken the East-West cross country airplane record. Natalie Wade, mis taken by him for a newspaper reporter, writes the exclusive account of Monty's arrival, and succeeds in securing a trial job with a paper in exchange for the story. Natalie becomes attached to Monty.

Although she discovers Monty's love for her is not sincere, Natalie admits that she loves him. She is assigned by her paper to report Monty's activities for publication. Jimmy Hale, the newspaper's photographer, becomes Natalie's co-worker.

Natalie interviews Jabe Marion, a wealthy airplane builder, who decides to build a record-breaking round the world plane for Monty. Marion's daughter, Sunny, exquisitely beautiful, is attracted to Monty. She invites Natalie to dine with her, when they meet the aviator unexpectedly.

Natalie discovers that Sunny is jealous of her friendship with Monty, and that she is trying to prevent them from being alone. After driving to a mountain resort with Sunny and Jimmy, Monty again declares his love for Natalie.

Sunny attempts to drive Natalie from Monty's attention by climbing a high wall. She almost loses her balance and is pulled back by Monty. Jimmy later asks Natalie to consider his love for her if she refuses Monty.

Natalie induces Monty to set out with her in an airplane search for two missing aviators. At dusk Monty lands the plane in the open country, where he and Natalie must spend the night.

Resuming the search in the morning, they finally locate the fliers. Natalie wires the story to her paper. That night at dinner, Marion announces a non-stop round the world flight, with Monty piloting the new plane, 'Sunny Marion.'

Monty's plan is to have ten re-fuelling stations along the route, where pilots are to go aloft to refuel his plane. Monty flies with Natalie to New York, where he will begin the flight eastward. They are followed by Jimmy and Sunny.

The day before the flight, Monty once more declares his love to Natalie.

Sunny Marion had a new bearing now. That seeming triumph was gone but in its stead had come a quiet determination.

Their own pilot had miscalculated the speed Monty would make. It was a race at the last to see who would get in first at Mineola and scarcely had their tri-motor stopped rolling when the black ship, a little battered and worse for wear, swept downward.

It was then that Natalie's knees almost buckled under her. Jimmy and Sunny raced on ahead to gather him into their arms. Natalie came after with Jabe Marion.

To her amazement, Sunny faced her with Monty, her arm about him and his thrown across her shoulder.

"Congratulate us, people," she was saying. "Mont and I are going to be married."

Mont turned quickly and looked down into Sunny Marion's face. Clearly he had not expected so early an announcement but he grinned and looked up again and gripped Jabe Marion's hand as the older man sprang forward.

Natalie was surprised at her own reaction. She thought she knew now what Sunny had meant when she spoke of cheating. The girl, no doubt, had taken Monty's words as an offer of marriage on their night together. Mont had been caught in the trap of her apartment naivete.

Suddenly then Natalie realized that she, too, had been caught. Nothing she could say or do would make any difference. Mont was equally helpless. And if what she suspected was true, there might be desperation behind Sunny's haste.

Natalie caught Mont's hand in hers and clung to it. But her eyes avoided his face, fearing what they might find there. Maybe it was all true. Maybe Mont had meant only that he could not marry Natalie. Maybe he had willingly been drawn into this engagement with Sunny Marion.

Such was their greeting. Such was Natalie's meeting with the man she loved after the agony of those weeks.

But the joy of seeing him, of having him near, kept her from being cast down. It was not till she was alone that night that she gave way to a torrent of tears.

They had gone to the Rensselaer Hotel in New York for the night. Natalie had done her own story and had listened while Mont talked with the other news paper reporters. She had no time alone with him.

Jabe and Sunny Marion had borne him off with them.

And even Jimmy Hale was nowhere about.

Next day the newspapers all it was understood the cut-lines carried the announcement Sunny Marion for whom his plane had been named would become the bride of the world flier, Mont Wallace. Jimmy's picture of her appeared everywhere and that evening there were pictures of Mont and Sunny before the world flight plane.

said, that the wedding would be postponed till after Wallace had made another attempt at the non-stop trip around the world.

After that there was nothing much left for Natalie Wade but the job she held and she plunged into it with all the energy she could muster. She wondered a little that she saw nothing of Jimmy outside working hours.

Jimmy had told her once that he would be waiting for her if things cracked up for her. They would, he said, jump off a high place together. Maybe that was what he was afraid of now. Maybe he felt that his return to her would bring a mood of desperation to them both.

But she laughed at the thought. She could take defeat, not with equanimity it was true, but she could take it. It was desperate uncertainty that unnerved her.

Mont Wallace and the Marions were deep in plans for the second flight. There would be little news in that until it was accomplished for failure made no heroes for the front pages. Monty had been a spectacular figure on his return, but only because of his return from the dead. His romance had kept the page open to him for another day, but after that there were more thrilling stories than his new preoccupation with work, his hours spent on the plane and on the revision of the flight organization.

Natalie herself was writing a new series of features and found herself engrossed.

Life was returning to its old round. Even Mack Hanlon was little interested in the story of the new flight attempt.

But at last the day of the take off came.

The plans had been changed now. The start was to be made from the home base. New York was only one of the refueling stops. The last leg of the flight would be down the coast from Nome.

Before dawn they were at the field. Jimmy was there with his flashlights going to record the new scene and the altered plane.

And Sunny Marion was there. It was the first time Natalie had seen her in weeks. The change in her appearance shocked the older girl. It was not possible that this was the golden beauty of a few weeks before.

The plane had been trundled out to the runway. Its motor was turning briskly. The clockers were in their own places. Grease-monkeys swarmed about. And because it was the first start of an international flight from the small port, there was a goodly crowd of curious on-lookers.

Natalie moved through the crowd for a sight of Mont. At last she found him talking with Jabe Marion and the little radio operator. She joined the small party and stood at Mont's side.

"Good luck and success this time, boy," she spoke in a low tone. "I've got a bet right on your nose."

If you haven't got your new license yet for your car and your driver's license renewed, better get busy or the goblins might get you. We hope that the iron men paid in each year for car and truck licenses will work a little harder in the future for better roads than they have done in the past.

A quiet wet snow commenced in the early hours of Tuesday, following a raw and chilly south and east wind all day on Monday.

D. M. Powelson was busy seeding oats when the storm started seven acres having been seeded. Dave took out a new Massey-Harris one-way seeder and combine early last week.

Golfers Ready for Victoria Meet

While the rest of Canada is skiing, Victoria, B.C., will be the scene of one of the Dominion's most important—and certainly its most unusual—golf tournament of the year. Ten years ago Victoria produced its first winter golf meet to prove that Canada too could have winter golf. The idea caught on amazingly, with the result that the tournament has grown steadily. Entries have increased, more trophies are being given, and a record turn-out is expected for this year.

Already more than 30 entries have been received for the tournament, which commences March 7, from nearby Seattle, including Leo Stoll, who won both handicap and scratch events last year, and from Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver. A few Eastern Canadian golfers are also expected for this annual Empire Hotel fixture on the famous Roynl Colwood course.

The main event is a handicap competition for both men and women for the Sir Edward Beatty trophy. Other prizes include the Victoria Chamber of Commerce open trophy, match play on a scratch basis; men's and women's inter-club team games; Jack Matson trophy for inter-district match; Rotary Club rosebowl for women's best gross score; and special medal awards.

All in all, it adds up to five days of golf and fun, with the Empress Hotel and Roynl Colwood clubhouse en fête to receive golfing visitors.

PARENTS

Give your Child this Advantage

SOMETHING every parent of a growing child should know—a survey of 10,000 school children has proved that a typewriter, used for homework, improves general school work enormously. Spelling, reading and composition are especially bettered. Why deny your child this help, when it costs so little?

Not only your children, but you, and all your family, will enjoy using the Remington Portable Typewriter at home.

NEWS NOTES

Flattery is soft soap; and soft soap is 90 p.c. lye.

Last week's blizzard brought about 12 inches of snow here.
Winnifred reported 17 inches in the same storm.

When his large barn burned
on Monday, Philip Zgurski, Taber farmer, besides losing a lot of feed, had 112 hogs burned to death, 35 of them being ready for market. Cause of the blaze is unknown.

Trucks were having difficulty on Wednesday trying to get to the Town dam south of the Town with their loads of gravel for rip rapping. Just enough snow continues to fall to keep the roads quite greasy.

A gravel crew was busy spreading gravel on the street running east past Paul Dahl's residence. This street is always a bad one in the spring and the City Dads hope that a good coat of gravel will keep it from breaking up in the future.

Pres. Z. W. Jacobs and party who left Cardston for Salt Lake Tuesday morning of last week during the blizzard, were marooned for four days at the Culp farm south of Magrath before they were able to continue their journey.

NEWS NOTES

The town's cinder streets that were worked on just before this storm, stood up good and dried off rapidly when the snow was pushed back a little with graders.

The average price for horses at the recent auction sale in Lacombe was $84.13 and 684 head brought a total of $57,546.
Every province in Canada except Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island got some of the horses.

When two engines and a snow plow were derailed in eastern Alberta, D. O. Brown, C. N.R.
engineer was so severely scalded that he died in hospital. Four other men, officials of the train were injured, but none except Brown very seriously.

Cattle markets and hog prices were up this week in Calgary, and weaners and feeders are practically impossible to obtain.
It begins to look as if cattle feeders may make out alright on their winter's operations.

Coronation reports that with a brisk demand for horse hair, horsemen there are finding their horses with their tails bobbed and some of them clipped. A typographical error in the Examiner made it read, sails instead of tails.

Louis Brandley, Wm. Redd
and party returned from Edmonton Sunday evening last, after spending a week there in presenting a brief from the Beet Growers of the district to the Rowell commission.

Hon. J. L. Hsley, Minister of Revenue in the Dominion Cabinet, announced Monday that preliminary figures showed customs and excise taxes to be up $44,701,518 over the previous fiscal year. The fiscal year for which these figures is to March 31st last.

Wilford Heninger suffered severe losses following the blizzard when five horses and a fresh milch cow were drowned in the reservoir on his farm. The horses and cattle were turned out of the feed lots to water and while most of them were rescued, high snow banks on one side of the reservoir and a thin ledge of ice about 5 feet below the surface of the water, prevented the six head of stock from getting out. As usual the dead animals contained the best of the lot, being a black team he had recently refused to sell for $250 and the black saddle horse, which had been the envy of many local people who had seen this animal in action.

$100,000,000 WORKS
PROGRAM

Rumor says that the Dominion is planning to spend $100,- 000,000 in a works program during the next four years, to construct necessary works and take people off the relief rolls.
A hard-surfaced trans-Canada highway would be one of the projects to be undertaken.

A MATTER OF OPINION

Two friends met in the street
One of them had his arm broken in a motor accident and was carrying it in a sling.

"Say," asked the first, "it's too bad about your arm! How long will you have to carry it in a sling?"

The injured man shrugged.
"There's a slight difference of opinion about that," he replied.
"My doctor says two weeks—and my lawyer says twelve!"
